Investigation ongoing into cause of Garden Street fire

An investigation is ongoing into what ignited a fire at Garden Street residence Sunday evening which displaced four residents.

Amsterdam Fire Chief Michael Whitty said city police detectives are conducting follow-up interviews and the cause of the blaze would not be determined until the investigation is concluded.

Amsterdam Police Chief Gregory Cullick said "nothing solid" was revealed as of Monday afternoon from the interviews. He said there were some debts firefighters received from the scene and it’s being tested for incendiary properties. He said there was something suspicious near to the first floor apartment.

A spokesperson for the Northeastern New York Chapter of the American Red Cross said financial assistance was provided to four adults and a 15-year-old for shelter, food and clothing needs.

American Red Cross will also help connect the individuals to resources for long-term recovery needs.

Whitty confirmed a total of five people were living at the house at the time of the fire. One was found on the second floor and one on the ground level.

Amsterdam firefighters responded around 7:10 p.m. Sunday to an active structure fire at 11 Garden St. and discovered a fully involved fire in a living room on the first floor, according to Whitty. He said residents were reportedly inside the home when the fire ignited, but everyone was able to escape the building unharmed.

Several cats were also in the building during the fire and firefighters were seen leaving with the building. It is unknown how many pets were in the building or what condition they were in.

Whitty said the fire ignited in the living room on the first floor, which is located near the kitchen and facing Garden Street.

He said there was extensive fire damage to the interior of the building.

FONDAD — The Village Board held a special meeting Monday to pass resolutions relating to the Municipal Consolidation and Efficiency Competition (MCEC) which has an application deadline Wednesday.

Board members passed a resolution in general support of the MCEC.

"We will work collectively with Montgomery County and our municipalities partners within the county to invigoratively and fundamentally transform the number in which local governments operate and municipal services are delivered," Mayor William Bell said.

"A lot of that stuff we were doing already with operations between municipalities, but it will expand and that’s the idea behind it, I think we are going to see more and more of this in the future." Perler said that on a small scale the village has made consolidation efforts such as sharing trash collection.

"Consolidating is going to become a necessity," he said.

The Amsterdam Housing Authority, in partnership with the Montgomery County Aliens in Protection, is hosting the organization’s first community event later this week featuring a variety of activities.

The West End Community Fest will be held Thursday from 2 to 6 p.m., rain or shine, on a portion of Fire Street between Division and Cedar streets.

Activities begin with an all-age Domino tournament with prizes and a Home Depot work shop for children. The event also includes a canine presentation by the Amsterdam Police Department, face painting, a make-your-own sundae station by Stewart’s Shops, and musical entertainment.

Damiris Carbone, executive director of the Amsterdam Housing Authority, said discussions began about a year ago to hold an event for West End residents. Carbone said the AHA was able organize the event.

Marathoner completes trek to run in all 50 states

Over the last 20 years and 30,000 miles Palatine Bridge resident Diane Hanson has managed to complete a marathon in each of the 50 states.

On June 17, the 52-year-old made her final stop, completing state.

A month before her 30th birthday, while she was employed at St. Mary’s Hospital, she and several co-workers would walk every day during lunch.

“True marathoners walk so fast why don’t you just run,” Hanson said.

Her friend mentioned how much fun she used to have running and Hanson agreed to do the next race they could find. To her surprise, three weeks later they saw a 5k held at the Mayfield High School by Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD).

“I was naive about running and I didn’t know, I figured that there would be nothing until the spring,” Hanson said.

The race was an inaugural 5k and not many people competed. Hanson ended up getting third place, but there was only three to four people competing in her age group.

“But I was all happy,” she said. “You get food, you got a shirt, you got a medal and you met nice people. I like that was pretty fun.”

From there, Hanson began racing here and there and eventually joined the Fulmont Road.

POLICE REPORTS

TOWN OF MONTGOMERY — Mohawk Town Board members followed suit with the town of Amsterdam and passed a resolution supporting the Municipal Consolidation and Efficiency Competition during a special meeting last week.

The first was a resolution supporting the enhance- ment of municipal consolidation and efficiency and the implementation of records management systems. A second resolution supported the consolidation, not only the inefficiency associated with paper storage, but also of the operational costs in terms of space, time and manpower.

Town Supervisor Edward Bishop said they agreed with the resolution because “each town has a portal that could be used to share information.”

“From the standpoint of the IT records, every- thing that we have today is paper. It’s all over the place. It’s not as if you can use a document management system to maintain town records that are all paper and they are used throughout the town,” he said.

Bishop said he supported the resolution because it was a formal agreement in support of the municipal consolidation and efficiency competition. According to the resolution, the town recognizes the assessment practices within the county.

“As far as the concern is concerned, looking in the future, we think somewhere along the line these consolidations are going to be inevitable. As the town keeps and keeps up with what we can afford to pay, what we need, our residents, our cost in the long run. So this is something that is well-timed, but it’s also something that’s worthwhile and something that’s important. You never know what’s going to happen when something like this is coming,” said Bishop.

Trump travel ban partly reinstated: court arguments set for the fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is allowing President Donald Trump to go ahead with a limited version of his travel ban. A federal appeals court in Seattle had blocked the ban, which President Barack Obama had allowed to take effect on Thursday morning.

The ban targets six Muslim-majority nations and it is needed “to protect the nation from terrorism,” said Monday. Trump’s ban vis-à-vis Iran, Libya, Somalia, Sudan, Syria and Yemen is intended to stop those from the United States. A senior official said plans already had been written to enforce the ban aggressively. But immigrant groups said relatively few people were likely to enter the United States under so-called well-established ties. Those groups said they would seek lawyers and monitors back in American courts to ensure, in the event of immediate implementation of the ban in January caused by chaos and confusion.

The court said the administration would have to show that the ban targets Muslims but says it is needed “to protect the nation from terrorism activities” committed by citizens of the six countries. The court asked both sides to present highlighted concerns about the ban on travel from the countries, the record shows that the Sixth Circuit said that it would be implemented starting an internal review of the ban and allow an internal review of the ban as well.

The president has denied that his measure more generous. That could win over more than the House measure over the coming weeks. The CBO estimates that 22 million additional people without coverage would be insured under the measure the House approved last month, the budget office has estimated. President Donald Trump has called the House version “mean” and challenged between the government and still win approval for the legislation over a nearly $3 million settlement with the city that employed the officer, avoiding a federal wrongful death lawsuit that attorneys said they would have taken years to resolve. The settlement to be paid to Valerie Castile, who is the family’s lawyer, was announced Monday and comes less than two weeks after officer Jeronimo Yanez was acquitted of manslaughter and other charges connected to her son’s death. Castile, a 30-year-old elementary school cafeteria worker, was shot five times by Yanez during a traffic stop after Castile’s brother the he was armed. Castile had a permit for his gun. The shooting gained widespread attention after Castile’s girlfriend, who was in the car with their 6-year-old daughter, livestreamed its gruesome aftermath on Facebook.

The 22-month settlement for Valerie Castile will be paid by the League of Minnesota Cities Insurance Trust, which holds the insurance policy for the city of St. Anthony. The plan for distribution of funds requires approval by a state court, which could take several weeks.

Supreme Court rules for Missouri church

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that churches have the same right as other charitable groups to seek state funds to repair their buildings.

Chief Justice John Roberts said for the court that the state violated the U.S. Constitution’s First Amendment by denying a nonreligious charity the same right as other charitable groups to seek state funds for building repairs. Roberts said the state’s decision runs afoul of the Supreme Court’s 2006 decision in a Missouri case that churches have the same right as other charitable groups to seek state funds for building repairs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Security Administration says a roughly 20-pound live lobster was spotted in a person’s luggage at Boston’s Logan International Airport.

A spokesman for the TSA said Monday that the lobster was spotted Sunday in the passenger’s checked luggage at Terminal C. The TSA said it does not prohibit transporting lobsters. The TSA website says a live lobster is allowed through security, but it must be declared on the passenger’s statement of ownership and the live lobster must be kept cold during the flight.

The court asked both sides to address the issue of timing, as well as questions about whether the ban is aimed at Muslims, the impact of Trump’s proactive campaign and statements and litigation to restrain the president in the area of immigration.

Justice Anthony Kennedy, writing for the majority, overruled a lower court that had blocked the ban as violating the U.S. Constitution’s First Amendment.

Philando Castile’s family reaches $3 million settlement

The Russian Foreign Ministry says Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov and U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson talked Monday about the need to secure a ceasefire in Syria among extremist groups and to prevent the use of chemical weapons.

It added that Lavrov “urged Washington to refrain from provoking violations against Syrian government forces and terrorist groups.”

Moscow reacted angrily when the U.S. deflected Russian warning Wednesday by dropping bombs near the U.S.-backed Syrian Democratic Forces conducting operations against the Islamic State group.

Russia warned its military would track aircraft from the U.S.-led coalition as “potential targets” near Syria and suspended a hotline intended to avoid mid-air incidents.

Israel: Projectile from Gaza

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli military says a projectile fired from the Gaza Strip has landed in southern Israel.

The military said Monday the projectile hit an open area and no one was hurt.

The attack broke a period of relative calm and raised the possibility of Israeli retaliation.

Israel called Hamas’s rulers responsible for all fire out of the seaside strip, which is run by any of the various militant groups challenging Hamas.

Israel and Hamas have fought three wars since 2008 and a Gaza group took control of a Gaza decade ago.

The Gaza Strip has largely held since then.

Bernie Sanders, the Left, Christianity and the Constitution

Independence Day is almost here and, inevitably, many Americans will gather around July 4 barbecues. We’ll grill some meat and eat corn and drink beer. Some of us might even shout, “Land of the free; home of the brave.”

But there’s one thing we won’t talk about: religion.

Not religion, though.

On July 4 we’ll talk about freedom of religion. But we’re not talking about freedom of religion in America.

No, we’re talking about religion in general. It’s so shocking, it’s unimaginable. Another nation—America—hasn’t yet jettisoned from the roles at one time promised to it by its founders.

I’m still trying to believe the headlines I see these days. That the Supreme Court can properly be heard as a warning, by a U.S. senator, about the future of freedom of religion in America.

That this view is held by a leader of the Democratic Party represents a threat to Americans of all faiths. Because it demonstrates a stunning misunderstanding of the nature of freedom of religion.

And that this view is held by a leader of the Democratic Party, on the future of freedom of religion in America.

Part of the problem is that people are confused about what freedom of religion really means.

And that’s because it’s all about the Constitution. And the Cabinet. And the Department of Health and Human Services.

But that shouldn’t be a surprise. People of different faiths deserve to be mistreated.

And they are.

Because the Senate and the House are considering a bill that would jettison from the Affordable Care Act’s expansion of Medicaid to more low-income adults, and replace it with something that’s better for private health insurers but worse for millions of Americans.

And that’s not the only reason.

The Affordable Care Act was passed because of the Constitution that states that “no religious Test shall ever be required as a Qualification for any civil Office.”

No test.

But that shouldn’t be a surprise. People of different faiths deserve to be mistreated.

And that’s because it’s all about the Constitution.

The issue was starting to spread into those areas," Whitty said. White had the blaze was extending up to the second floor, but firefighters extinguished the flames before it reached the upper level.

River Ridge claims title

Foss snaps 4-4 tie with dramatic three-run home run in top of the sixth inning

Prior to the 2017 Amsterdam Youth Baseball League season, River Ridge coach Mike Reagan had to convince Brady Foss to give baseball a go for another season. Foss listened, and Monday evening at Isabel’s Field, that decision paid big-league dividends.

In his final at-bat in the AYBL’s rec league, Foss smashed a tie-breaking three-run home run in the top of the sixth inning that proved to be the difference as River Ridge toppled Five Corners Mobil, 7-4, in Game 2 of the Majors Division championship series to claim a 2-0 sweep in the Amsterdam Youth Baseball League Majors Division championship series Monday at Isabel’s Field.

Amsterdam won the opener 8-0 and took the nightcap by an 18-3 score.

The second game was stopped after five innings because of the league’s 12-run mercy rule.

Amsterdam finished the regular season winning its last six games and ended up with a 5-3 American West Division record and an overall mark of 9-12.

Defensively, the Rams were errorless in both games, striking out 10 and walking three.

In the opener, T.J. Platt and Massimo Pasquarelli each had doubles and Mason Gieseler added a single. Amsterdam allowed four hits while striking out 10 and walking three.

Offensively, Emmanuel Santos and Anthony Antonelli each had two singles and Murphy had two singles to set the stage for Williamson who also had a double and three singles to lead the Amsterdam offense. Cotugno added a single and Dane Dillenback and Williamson each had a double and single. Amsterdam took the win on the strength of 10 hits.

In the nightcap, Constantino struck out two and walked two.

Offensively, Constantino raced out with a big one-run first inning and coasted from there. Amsterdam added three runs in the second and coasted from there. Amsterdam added three runs in the second and coasted from there.

 New Zealand routs Oracle Team USA to win America’s Cup

 HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Helmsman Peter Burling and Emirates Team New Zealand won the America’s Cup on Monday with a resounding romp against seasoned skipper Larry Ellison’s two-time defending champion Oracle Team USA.

 The underdog but resourceful Kiwis claimed the oldest trophy in international sports with another dominating light-air sprint around the Great Sound aboard their fast, 50-foot foiling catamaran.

 They won Race 9 to clinch the America’s Cup match at 7-3.

 As soon as the red-and-black cat crossed the finish line, the normally reserved crew of six began whooping and jumped up onto the培训平台 netting and into a joyful press gang.

 “We’re on top of the world,” said Burling, who at 26 becomes the youngest helmsman to win sailing’s greatest prize in a competition that dates to 1851.

 Magnificence of champagne arrived and Burling and crewman Blair Tuke, who won Olympic gold and silver medals together, sprayed the crew.

 There were five Kiwis on the crew plus Australian Glenn Ashby, a multi-talented wire who serves as skipper and controls the vangail.

 There were no Americans on Oracle Team USA’s crew, which included five Australians and one from Antigua.

 Team New Zealand started with a negative point because Oracle Team USA won the qualifier, forcing the Kiwis to win eight races to return the 36th America’s Cup to the Royal New Zealand Yacht Squadron in Auckland for the first time since 2003.

 The Kiwis aimed for their mind-numbing collapse in 2013, when they blew a 1-8 lead as Oracle won eight straight races in one of the greatest comebacks in sports.

 Race 9 was another blowout for New Zealand, which rep
Tebow's career has seen him flit between baseball and football. He was drafted by the Florida Marlins in 2008 but never broke through to the majors. In 2016, he signed with the New York Mets, who had high hopes for him. However, injuries marred his time with the Mets, and he was released in 2017.

In football, Tebow is perhaps best known for his time at the University of Florida, where he won the Heisman Trophy in 2007. He then played for the Denver Broncos in the NFL, where he was traded to the New York Jets before being released.

Despite his success in both sports, Tebow has struggled to find a consistent role. He was released by the Denver Broncos in 2013 and has since attempted to make a comeback in the NFL.

This year, he signed with the New York Mets, who hoped he could bring some of his clutch football mentality to the baseball field. However, injuries have disrupted his progress, and he has yet to make a significant impact in the majors.

Despite the challenges, Tebow remains optimistic about his future. "I understand that things don't always work out the way you want them to," he said. "But I'm going to keep working hard and see what happens."

Teemu Selanne and Paul Kariya were dynamos for Anaheim for several years, and even though their careers have long since ended, they are still associated with the Hockey Hall of Fame together. Although Kariya is not a candidate this year, Selanne is. The two are the headline names for the Hall of Fame’s class of 2017, which should be announced publicly this week and include a few players who are on their respective ballot categories.

Selanne was elected in his first year of eligibility after amassing 1,457 points in 1,451 games over 21 NHL seasons. The Hall’s 10-man First-Year All-Star, had 76 goals and an assist in 48 games over 11 NHL seasons.

The dynamic Estonian forward had so much success with the Ducks and the Avalanche that he brought with him to the Coyotes.

Selanne’s induction will make the Hall’s 10-man First-Year All-Star, had 76 goals and an assist in 48 games over 11 NHL seasons.

How 4 scripted TV shows are adapting to Donald Trump Era

By FRAZIER MOORE

NEW YORK (AP) — The Donald Trump presidency has formed a challenge for scripted TV shows that up to now have been dealing with the political classes and institutions of America as-usual for their characters and stories. Here are some shows that, each in its own way, are adapting to the new age of government ushered in by Trump.

“House of Cards” (Netflix, premiering April 2012) is riding high with Selina Meyer’s portrayal as a presidential candidate. The challenge ahead for “House of Cards”: how to co-exist with the blend of news and entertainment that helped usher in the Trump presidency, according to showrunner Frank Pugliese. With cable news, in particular, “it’s almost like they’ve become sort of serialized shows like it’s a TV show. So in a strange way, the biggest competition for us in other TV shows, it’s competing with 24-hour news and how they talk about the presidency.”

“Madam Secretary” (CBS, premiered September 2014) is a show that has always focused on the right thing as exemplified by its depiction of Rachael Elizabeth McCord as its lead actress. The show has been successful in its depiction of President Donald Trump as a con man.

“A Madam Secretary” spin-off show, “Madam Secretary: For the Record,” was recently announced. The show will explore a fictional White House official who becomes a talk show host.

“Homeland” (Showtime, premiering Oct. 30, 2011) is a suspenseful thriller that follows a former CIA agent turned terrorist. The show has been praised for its realistic depiction of terrorism and its impact on ordinary Americans. The challenge ahead for “Homeland” is to adapt to the Trump presidency and its impact on the domestic political landscape.

President Trump: "The Five" is a show that explores the intersection of politics and entertainment. The show has been controversial due to its often skeptical coverage of President Trump.

"House of Cards" (Netflix, premiering February 2013) is led by Kevin Spacey as Underwood, who has played his role as the Machiavellian House majority whip and then the nation’s chief executive. As played by Kevin Spacey, he was agile and willing to do anything to get his way. DEAR ABBY: My wife died of cancer four years ago. She was my best friend, and the pain of losing her was more than I could cope with. I was in a fog for about two years, not going through the motions. Eventually the fear of spending the next 20 to 30 years alone drove me to try internet dating. I met some nice women and some very strange ones, but nothing came of it.

Then a year ago, an old friend introduced me to “Elaine.” We hit it off immediately. We share the same interests and have a sense of humor, and I have grown fond of her. She’s intelligent, kind and beautiful, and the eyes. Our grown kids get along very well.

Our mutual friend told me that Elaine said she loves me and would be thrilled if I proposed — I guess to encourage me to move on. But at least she’ll know what she’s dealing with.

How do I respond without hurting her feelings? It might also be a good idea for you to consider all the factors. It may make it easier for you to move forward with your life.

DEAR ABBY: Our friend’s adult children invited us to a birthday party they were throwing for their parent at a restaurant. As we were ordering, the servant asked if the check would be separate or couples. (This was our first clue that we were expected to pay for our dinner.) For us, it was no problem, but an elderly couple had a long discussion about how they would pay.

When inviting guests to a party, is it proper to expect them to pay for their dinner? And if so, how should it be handled?

Our mutual friend told me that Elaine said she loves me and would be thrilled if I proposed — I guess to encourage me to move on. But at least she’ll know what she’s dealing with. How do I respond without hurting her feelings? It might also be a good idea for you to consider all the factors. It may make it easier for you to move forward with your life.

Since debuting for the Mohawks on June 13, Collert has shown some impressive power at the dish. Although he’s six in a row to start the PGCBL with four home runs, the Terre Haute native has done so in six less games and all four two-out singles. He came in the past week. In eight games played from June 19-25, the first baseman from Kentucky hit .407 (11-for-27) with two doubles, four home runs, 15 RBIs and eight runs scored. The 6-foot, 215-pound catcher/first baseman has been his most impressive game in a 9-3 win over Saugerties on June 24, when he went 4-for-5 with two doubles, one dinger, a trio of RBIs and two runs. He had the chance to go for the cycle in the ninth, but his fourth hit of the day resulted in a ground-rule double after knocking the wall.

During the week of June 19-25, Wilson hit the cover off of the ball with a blistering .359 batting average (11-for-31), while his five doubles and two home runs resulted in a sky-high 1.158 slugging percentage, both figures paced the PGCBL, one for each past seven days. In addition, the rising senior from Canisius produced 13 RBIs — second only to Collert — and scored six runs in seven games played. The product of Ayr, Ontario, Canada, finished a perfect 3-for-3 in two occasions, first in a 13-2 win against Clifton, and second in a 6-2 defeat of the Amsterdam Green Sox versus Glens Falls on June 22. After hopping the wall.
