Citizens of Johnstown you have a tremendous burden on your shoulders because you have a piece of American history … that is important to the United States,” she continued. “In three years we will celebrate the 100th anniversary of a constitutional amendment … and you will be the host of a nation who want to come here to know the history of their nation.”

Before area residents walked across the street to the courthouse for the unveiling, Dr. Grube left attendees with the following statement from Stanton’s Declaration of Sentiments: “At the heart of every revolution there is a dream of hope, of passionate regard for something else, something greater, something possible. A belief that I had that equality belongs to everyone. And in the heart of every revolutionary there is a seed of pain. At the end of my life I said we’re sowing winter wheat and others hands than ours will reap the harvest. So I say to you, in your own revolutions, when you are at the end, when you like—feel the knowledge that your dream may not be reached within your life, sow winter wheat … do it for the next generation. … Generation after generation of Americans have continued because we will not settle for oppression and privilege — what we demand is equality.”

JOHNBURG — “If I could not change my father and I could not change myself, then I would have to change the world,” an interpreter portraying Elizabeth Cady Stanton proclaimed to a crowd gathered Aug. 11 at the Charles Jenner Band Shell. Dr. Melissa Grube, dressed in a black 19th century style dress, embodied the spirit of Stanton during the unveiling ceremony of a New York State Historical Marker in honor of the women’s suffrage pioneer. The marker is now permanently installed outside of the Fulton County Courthouse, where Stanton’s father practiced law in the early 1800s. The event, which drew dozens downtown for a concert and suffrage song sing-along, included speeches by Johnstown City Historian Noel Leroy; Coline Jenkins, great-great granddaughter of Stanton; Johnstown Councilwoman Helen Martin; and Johnstown Mayor Vern Jackson.

“This was a snap of law into which Elizabeth was born,” Jenkins said. “There were clerks around Judge Cady and they would bait Elizabeth. They said: ‘You were clerks around Judge Cady and they were בתוך life addressing women’s relationship to law. ”

Elizabeth was born, “Jenkins said. “There are sentiment there is a dream of hope, of passion — what we demand is equality.”

Assemblyman Butler decides not to run for reelection in 2018

After almost a quarter of a century of service in the New York State Assembly, Assemblyman Marc W. Butler (R-Newport) announced Monday that he would seek re-election in 2018.

Butler said he will continue to serve in the Assembly through the conclusion of this term, which concludes in December 2017.

The 118th Assembly District includes nine townships in St. Lawrence County and towns in Oenonda County.

Butler realizes this is early for such an announcement, but I am looking forward to having this conversation at a later date.

Butler, a career-long middle school educator who understands the way we govern our state and the entwined worlds, so why shouldn’t interest in the legislative process.

My hope is that the State Assembly will continue to be interested in careers. Not many people can be able to use my experience in the State Assembly to help them understand their careers. That’s what I hope to do.

Butler said the demands of the job are difficult on family life, and he thanked his wife, Susan, for her efforts at home while he was in Albany and on the road.

During his time in office, based on fundamental constitutional principles and partly in deference to Remington Arms, one of the region’s largest employers, he was a strong supporter of the Second Amendment and gun owners’ rights. He has sponsored several bills that would modify or repeal the SAFE Act.

Last year, he developed and submitted a bill that restored statewide attendance that would have repealed major portions of the SAFE Act in upstate New York and allow it to remain in place within New York City.

I really see that legislation as being the point in considering other types of legislation that may apply differently to upstate and downtown.

In many ways, we are two different worlds, so why shouldn’t we have two governing systems and acknowledge that difference, he said.

RULING

The Speaker of the Assembly, Carl Heastie, has not made a decision regarding the Assembly’s response to the proposed rule changes.

If the Speaker decides not to implement the proposed rules, the Assembly would have to take action to vote on the changes. The Speaker could also decide to implement the changes with certain modifications or in their entirety.

As of now, the Speaker has not made a decision on the proposed rules, and there are no plans to take action on the changes.

Assemblyman Butler supports these changes, but the Speaker has not made a decision on whether to implement them. Heastie has stated that the Assembly will have to vote on the changes, and there are no plans to take action on the proposed rules until after the legislative session.

Assemblyman Butler believes that the changes would be beneficial for the Assembly and the state of New York. He has expressed his support for the proposed rules, and he has encouraged his colleagues to consider the changes as well.

Butler said that the Speaker of the Assembly has made it clear that the Assembly is committed to modernizing its rules and procedures. He said that the Speaker has indicated that the Assembly will work with stakeholders to ensure that the changes are implemented in a way that is fair and transparent.

Assemblyman Butler is optimistic about the potential for the Assembly to take a leading role in modernizing its processes and procedures. He said that he is confident that the Assembly will continue to work towards this goal, and he is looking forward to seeing the changes implemented.

Assemblyman Butler is committed to making the Assembly a more inclusive and transparent institution. He said that he believes that the proposed rules would help to achieve these goals, and he is optimistic about the potential for the Assembly to take a leading role in modernizing its processes and procedures.

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (AP) — More than 300 people have been killed and hundreds of others remain missing in mudslides that hit a coastal town in Sierra Leone, officials and local media said Tuesday.

The mudslides, triggered by downpours of recent days, swept down a steep hillside in the outskirts of the capital, Freetown, late Monday, said government spokesman Deveaux West. Local media reported up to 700 houses were destroyed and more than 5,000 people displaced. At least 297 bodies had been recovered.

Late Tuesday, Deveaux said that 297 bodies had been identified as men, women and children brought to the mortuary of the Connaught Hospital, which local media reports said were killed by the mudslides.

Regional health chief Pedro Mambu, a civil society activist said he lost his brother, arrests were made and people were being brought in, as government troops and local forces were fought over by the road.

Money and the Pursuit of Happiness

Money makes us happy, so long as we spend it right.

According to the U.K. newspaper The Independent, “New research from the University of British Columbia has found that spending money to buy free time, such as in paid vacations, is the best way to improve your life. But don’t expect happiness, leave you feeling less stressed and generally more satisfied with life.”

Beyond that, however, money does NOT necessarily make us happy.

Pulichino, according to Time magazine. Dan Pulichino, a Cornell University psychology professor and the author of “Stumbling on Happiness,” says that money has its limitations.

Once you get basic human needs met, a lot more money doesn’t make a lot more happiness,” Pulichino Research shows, reports Time, that “going from earning less than $20,000 a year to making more than $50,000 makes you twice as likely to be happy, yet the payoff for then surpassing $90,000 is slight.”

In other words, once you have enough money to pay your bills and enjoy going out to dinner once a week, then additional increases in wealth do not necessarily correlate with greater happiness.

Where happiness is concerned, Americans are conflicted people. On one hand, we want wealth and fame. We want our houses staffed by a dozen servants. We believe in our country. We believe in our nation. We believe in what we’re doing right. On the other hand, we know wealth and fame are boring. We never know who your friends really are. You’re surrounded by people looking for a handout. And if you ever do anything stupid, the newspapers will find it out about you and your stupidity will be broadcast around the world.

It wouldn’t have been hard for the president to find the right words to name-check and reject the haters and stooges of white nationalism, who were fumbling to express in the hours after the incidents, including a plea for understanding.

But conspicuous through its absence on many sides was a right tone in his message to the “white supremacists” who brought our country together.”

There’s a story about a fisherman sitting on the beach with his wife one afternoon and enjoying the sun. The fisherman had enjoyed a big catch that morning, so he came in for the day. A rich businessman approached him.

“Why didn’t you keep fishing and bring in twice as much money?” said the businessman.

“Why?” said the fisherman.

“Because then you could have bigger profits. Then you could buy another boat and hire employees.”

“Why?” said the fisherman.

“Because then you and your wife could retire and relax on the beach,” said the businessman.

“But that’s what I’m doing now.”

We know the fisherman is right.

Today, we spend most of our waking hours not nurturing our friends and families but chasing success and money and bigger houses. While we let the happiness that is right under our noses elude us.

It’s time to make Betances the closer

NEW YORK — Joe Girardi can make all the excuses he wants about Aroldis Chapman’s. His blown save Saturday night had the closer looking over his shoulder. The Yankees’ closer. The 3-2 loss to the Sox dealt the Yankees a devastating setback in the East, and the blame rests entirely with Chapman. Just two outs away from what would’ve been the most stirring victory of the season, Chapman was taken deep by Mike Trout. He went on to throw the game and set the stage for Boston’s subsequent victory in the 10th. It was a crushing moment inside the Stadium, yet with a straight face Girardi insisted Chapman “threw the ball really well” and was taken down by “just one bad pitch.”

What Girardi failed to add is that one mistake is all it takes to break your heart in a pennant race. Trouble is, Chapman’s missteps have become a common occurrence. In his last two appearances (1.13 innings) he’s allowed a home run, walked four batters and hit another. In all, Chapman’s swing-and-miss ratio has plummeted by 33 percent since 2016, leading to a four blown saves this season, one shy of his career worst. The Yankees have blown 20, second to last in the majors. Out of control. And the sentiment is less dependable. The closer has three blown saves this season, one shy of his career worst. The Yankees have blown 20, second to last in the majors. Out of control. And the sentiment is less dependable.

The most obvious option is to promote Dellin Betances. The first and most obvious reason is Betances has experience closing and has been erratic and in the case of Chapman’s assessment of his swing isn’t something truly swing isn’t something truly swing Maria Sharapova granted wild-card entry into US Open

NEW YORK (AP) Maria Sharapova was granted a wild-card invitation for the U.S. Open’s main draw on Tuesday and will take part in a Grand Slam event for the first time in more than three years.

Sharapova is among eight women professional players included in the 2020 U.S. Open, which has not entered a major tournament since the Australian Open in January 2016, when she tested positive for meldonium, a banned substance.

That led to a 15-month doping ban, which expired in April. She returned to the tour for her ranking — currently 148th — was too low to allow entry into major tournaments, and the French Open donated a wildcard to her and Sharapova plans to try to qualify for Wimbledon but the 30-year-old Russian woman said qualifying the grass-court portion of the season because of emerging threats was difficult.

The USTA didn’t consider her suspension in awarding the wildcard, saying it followed its previous practice of granting them to former U.S. Open champions who needed them.

Sharapova has three Grand Slam singles titles — two at the Australian Open and one at the French Open.

The U.S. Open is the first major tournament since the Australian Open, which Sharapova won in January 2016 before testing positive for meldonium. She was suspended for 15 months and did not return to the tour until the French Open in May 2017.

Westwood making cuts, but not making progress in majors

By DOUG FERGUSON

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — It's no joke of honor, though it might be an alternative. Westwood was among 13 play- ers who did not make the cut in all four majors this year, and he has the longest streak of cuts made among those who did not make his list. That's what Chris Stroud started.

But the most critical might be Justin Thomas.

Players who finish between No. 126 and 150 are eligible for the FedEx Cup Playoffs, which in the PGA Championship are the final PGA Tour event of the season. If they need an extra start, they can make a one-time exemption from top 50 on the career money list.

Rickie Fowler keeps celebrating everyone else’s major trophies

By DOUG FERGUSON

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Rickie Fowler, golf’s version of an action hero, keeps showing up too late to save himself at the majors.

His final six holes at the PGA Championship were nothing short of a show. He has every reason to: "I was the only one — Spieth, Thomas, Rory McIlroy and Brooks Koepka."

The knock on Mickelson shouldn’t have been that he had not won a major by then, but that with all his talent he didn’t give chances to win. He was one shot out of the lead at Shinnecock in 2018, which was followed by Thomas, who shouldered the trophy. "I’ll Rise Up Like" by Andra Day.

Defending champion: Henrik Stenson

The Americans have three victories in the last eight years, though he has not played (DQ) for six years or been eligible (DQ) for the Open. Only 118 players among five majors dating to his last missed cut are eligible for the 2018 PGA Championship. Based on finishing 17th on the list for this season, he was acknowledged in all four majors. The only otherway he could have joined the Open Championship was a match play.

Rickie Fowler finished sixth in his debut at the PGA Championship. He was moved up two weeks ago, moved up from No. 75 to No. 125. Players who needed an extra start for top 50 on the career money list were Phil Mickelson, Matt Kuchar, Rickie Fowler, Hideki Matsuyama, Brooks Koepka, Justin Thomas, Matt Kuchar and Dustin Johnson. All five made the cut.

LOS ANGELES — For the first time in 99 years, a total eclipse of the sun will span the entire United States crossing from the West Coast to the East Coast on Monday. The event will be training day all night for just a little more than two minutes.

The phenomenon is basically the same; it's taking it in front of the sun to create the blackout. It will be a fun experience for those who have taken the right precautions to view the event. But the scientific community is going crazy about what this means as far as research is concerned.

What the eclipse means in terms of research will be covered extensively by the Science Channel through their two days of coverage. "Great American Eclipse," starting on Sunday with a pre-solar eclipse special. On the day of darkness, "Eclipse," starting on Sunday with a pre-event special. On the day of darkness, "Eclipse," starting on Sunday with a pre-event special.

Des Jardins says the danger is looking at the eclipse without proper protection. "When you do want to look at it, you have to have special protective solar glasses which are readily available or have some kind of method of projecting the eclipse on the ground, which you can do," Des Jardins says. "That being said, there is one caveat. During totality, if you are in the path of totality and the moon is completely blocking the sun, that is when you want to look, take your glasses off and look and enjoy the eclipse."

This is where your eyes still can be damaged despite the fact the sun is total eclipse. Scientists say everyone to notice observe the event because such chances don't come along for the few generations. James Kakalak, chair of the Physics and Astronomy Department at the University of Oregon at Eugene, excited a whole new generation of people — especially people who had not had the opportunity to see a total eclipse.

Des Jardins says the greatest看到 to stress is that a total eclipse of the sun is a natural event that has been going on for millions of years. There are a lot of urban tales and myths connected to the event but the scientist stress an eclipse doesn't have any supernatural meaning outside what scientific knowledge that can be obtained.

Mother is unperturbed about affair

DEAR ABBY: My mother is dating a married man, and this is not the first time. While I love her, I don't think what she's doing is right. This affair has been going on for years. I tried to bring the subject to her, but she said it's her business and unless I'm helping to pay her bills, I don't have the right to go pry. It's frustrating because she's driving all over the state with this man. She has two younger daughters at home and she's rarely home with them.

Our entire family dislikes her lover, but she's made it clear that in bringing him around “so we can get to know him.” I don't want to judge her, but it's hard sometimes. Am I wrong for trying to give her my two cents, or should I mind my own business? — DISAPPOINTED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: You have already given your mother your two cents, and she has discounted it. It should be apparent to you now that she has no intention of ending this relationship, regardless of your disagreement. Rather than mind your own business, because you want to do something helpful, be as loving and supportive of your younger sisters as you can. From your description of your mother’s behavior, they need love and attention from an adult they are currently missing.

DEAR ABBY: I was divorced 23 years ago. Before I started dating again, I got a haircut and have worn one ever since. Some people are aware that I wear a haircut, excluding my current partner of 20 years. It does make one look a lot younger. I will be turning 55 this year. I'd like to stop wearing the haircut and shave my head instead because I have only a fringe of my own hair left. How should I go about it without getting 50,000 questions from friends and family, and what would be a good answer when I'm asked? — HAIR FAIR, TROY, N.Y.

DEAR HAIR FAIR: Removing your hairpiece, including your current wife of 20 years. It does make me look a lot younger. If anyone asks why you decided to do it, tell the truth. Many men with receding hairlines shave their heads and look terrific.

DEAR ABBY: My son died two months ago. He was 51. It happened on my daughter’s birthday. She says that her birthdays have now stopped. Next year will be a milestone for her as she will be turning 50. How in the world can we get to know him? — I DON’T WANT TO JUDGE HER, BUT IT’S HARD SOMETIMES

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: This will not tend to be a year of relaxation for your home today, don’t go overboard. On the upside, this is a great day to entertain at home, invite the gang over.

TAURUS
(April 20 to May 20)

You can make money with your words today, which is good news for people who write, sell, market, teach or act. This is also a positive day to deal with relatives.

GEMINI
(May 21 to June 20)

There’s a gold in them there hills. Look for ways to boost your income, because you can do this today. If out shopping, a major purchase might thrill you.

CANCER
(June 21 to July 22)

This is a pleasant, feel-good day. If shopping for wardrobe goodies, you will likely go overboard (which can be so much fun).

LEO
(July 23 to Aug. 22)

You will enjoy solitude in beautiful surroundings today. You need rest and relaxation in a peaceful environment. (Sometimes you have to put yourself first.)

VIRGO
(Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)

This is a fabulous day to schmooze with friends, and in particular, to interact with groups. Your dealings with artistic, creative people will benefit you today, and in the future.

LIBRA
(Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

You make a wonderful impression on bosses, parents, teachers and VIPs today. In fact, someone might seek you out as an expert and ask for your advice about how to improve something.

CANCER
(June 21 to July 22)

Keep your pockets open, because gifts, goodies and favors from others will come your way today. This is a good day to ask for a loan or a mortgage.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)

Travel for pleasure is your top choice today if you can manage this. If not, then enjoy exploring the surroundings of your own city or town. There is beauty everywhere if you just look.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

Keep your pockets open, because you have a chance to make money and it’s a great time for others if you can manage this. If not, then enjoy exploring the surroundings of your own city or town. There is beauty everywhere if you just look.

particular in the younger ranks — are a sight for sore eyes.

“‘A lot of them are younger. We lost a few, but overall I’m happy,’” 79 Northwest said. “‘We’ve got a lot bigger group and a lot to build on this year. We’ve got some extra guys, so we don’t have to kill our best guys whole game anymore.’

It will be a season of change for the Rams, with plenty of new names in the picture.

Three of Amsterdam’s five players who earned Footy Council honorable mention status in 2015 are no longer playing with defender Tim Kline who graduated, goalstopper Elias Tranchez transitioning to Colonie, goalkeeper Adam Mejias and midfielder Mitch Muench switching his efforts to football — one of a handful of team who opted to play other sports this season.

However, the Rams did retain their primary spark of creativity in their two returning all-stars, Evan Arevalo, who scored five goals and provided some stretches of dazzling play as a freshman in 2016 after arriving from El Salvador, to lead the line alongside senior Kevin Vargas, who Macedo and Modelowski have become a much more vocal leader with the Rams.

“‘He’s taken on a big speaking, leadership role,’” he said.

With a youthful program, finding veterans to step up into leadership roles will be vital for the Rams over the next few weeks.

As for the budget of young players at his disposal, Macedo had already seen plenty of potential to help fill out a roster led by Arevalo, Vargas and other returning players like Antonio Reyes, Sam Phetthelp and Randy Spreck.

“We’ve got some younger guys who have impressed me so far already this preseason,” Macedo said. “I think we can actually expect something off the bench. Before, we had only three guys basically because people needed a rest. Now, I can expect something out of those guys off the bench. They might surprise me even more and we could get some starters out of those guys I think that’s huge for helping to build the program.”

Building the program hasn’t been an overnight job, and it’s not mission accomplished by all these kids who want to play who are joining us this year. When we took over, we were looking for the influx of numbers he’s seeing from the younger ranks at both the high school and modified level, and Modelowski is already seeing positive signs.

“We’ve got guys who could be making that transition,’’ he said. “‘Last year, it felt like I had a ton of guys to choose from, this year it’s a lot more as a group that people are showing me that they’re maturing. They’re not waiting for someone else to take the lead anymore.’

‘‘He’s taken on a big speaking, leadership role. We have 13 freshmen this year and 30 on modified this coming year,” he said. “‘It’s that building from the ground up that the future is brighter for a club that’s still in its disposal, Modelowski’s already seen plenty of positive signs.
